What is Our Valley Our Vision: Stronger Together?

It's a once in-a-generation opportunity to explore growth-related issues and to think together about our future. This is a public process that is open to everyone. It's your voice and your project.

Over time, our valley is growing and changing. Just as we plan for the future of our families, we can be proactive about the valley that we call home. Together we will identify and explore our options, so we can understand the long-term consequences of the choices that we make today. We'll think about what we want to preserve and enhance and also about what we want to change or add to our community. After considering our options together, we'll choose the best path forward for our valley—one that addresses the needs of residents today, but also one that meets the needs of our children and grandchildren.

This is our valley and our vision. Together, we can ask and answer some questions: What sorts of recreational opportunities do we imagine? What could our downtowns be like? What about agriculture, roads, and housing? The big question is this: What legacy do we want to create for future generations? That answer becomes our vision. Plan now to join the conversation. Afterall, we’re stronger together.

Why Create a Vision? Why Is a Vision Important?

A vision identifies the long-term hopes of residents regarding the future of our valley. It also becomes a guide for plans that follow, plans that respond to the vision by answering the follow-up question: How do we get there together?

Who Is Working on this Effort?

The mayors of Centerfield and Gunnison are overseeing this process. A stakeholder committee of citizens from both communities is a part of the effort and is encouraging all residents to be involved. A consultant committed to listening and learning from our residents will help facilitate the process to ensure a fruitful community conversation and vision for our future.
